Insolvency & Arbitration

Presented by ACICA's Victorian Committee

Issues of solvency are increasingly relevant to international arbitrations. Whilst historically matters pertaining to 'insolvency' have been considered to be not arbitrable and the relevant legislative regime considered a matter for domestic courts, the intersection between arbitration and insolvency can no longer be ignored. Involving local domestic courts, tribunals, counsel and the parties themselves, the pending or actual insolvency of a party, potential party or award debtor raises complex legal and procedural issues. Join us, and an international panel, for an overview and practical demonstration of current legal frameworks and practice in respect of the conduct of international arbitrations and enforcement of international arbitral awards
