

Federal Court of Australia
NOTICE TO PROFESSION
Use of Junior Counsel

The Federal Court of Australia encourages the active participation of junior counsel in cases where two counsel are briefed for a party.

The Court recognizes that junior counsel will often have made a substantial contribution to the preparation of the case, and will best develop as advocates by being given, when it is considered appropriate, opportunities to take witnesses or to present argument.

Whilst it is always a matter for senior counsel, he or she should feel no inhibition from the Court in dividing the work of the case (first instance or appeal) between himself or herself and junior counsel, when it is thought appropriate to do so.
